PERU: VIOLENT PROTESTS ARE EXPECTED TO CONTINUE

Since early December 2022, anti-government protests have led to the deaths of at least 58 people, as demonstrators clashed with security forces. This is Peru's worst outbreak of violence in over 20 years.

Protesters have also attacked police stations, shut down airports, blocked highways, and damaged the country's transportation infrastructure.

Tourism is key to the Peruvian economy and an important source of employment, which attracted some 4,5 million visitors per year before the Covid-19 pandemic in 2020.
